approaching the car, gun in hand, and witness informed Mr. Estes of the fact. Mr. Estes, according to witness, paid no attention to the matter and did not try to get away or conceal himself. Judge Loving came up to the car, the negro testified, ordered witness to stand aside, and addressing Estes, said:

"So you are the gentleman who was out buggy riding with ladies last evening and drugged them."

Story of the Killing.

Foster said that Loving then fired the first shot, which took effect in the young man's side. Estes threw up both hands and exclaimed: "Oh, no, judge!" Loving made no reply, but emptied the other barrel of the gun into the neck, almost severing the head. Estes fell and died in a few moments. Judge Loving then turned and walked away, going back to turned and walked away, going back to the station at Oak Ridge, some fifty yards away. Estes said, "Help me, boys," and expired.

The gun with which the shooting was done was produced in court, as were the clothes of the dead man. These made a grewsome spectacle. The undergarments showed the holes made by the charge of buckshot and were clotted with blood. The crowd shuddered when the bloody relics were exhibited.

The remaining witnesses for the State merely corroborated statements or admitted facts dealing with the movements of Judge Loving on the day of the shooting.

ments of Judge Loving on the day of the shooting.

After two hours Wood Bouldin announced that the State rested its case.

R. Walton Moore, of Fairfax, announced that the defense would first introduce Judge William G. Loving, the accused man. He stepped briskly to the front, and was sworn, taking the stand with a dignified coolness. He was told to make whatever statement he desired, and was asked questions enough to make the story a connected narrative.

Passing to the matters immediately preceding the Hilling, he said that Harry Sneed, his brother-in-law, had come to him Monday following the Saturday afternoon on which the buggy ride was taken, saying he (Sneed) had come into possession of facts which he deemed it his duty to impart to him. This was the alleged drugging of Miss Loving by Estes.

Judge Loving was about to say what alleged drugging of Miss Loving by Estes.

Judge Loving was about to say what had been told him by Sneed when the State interposed an objection, and the jury was withdrawn. The State contended that what Sneed had told Loving was only hearsay and was not evidence. The defense took issue, and the matter was fought for an hour, and when adjournment was taken the attorneys had not completed their arguments. The defense contends that the jury should judge Loving's state of mind when told that his daughter had been brought back to the house "drugged and in an insensible condition."

Miss Loving her mother, and Miss Annie Sneed are not allowed in the court room during the examination of witnesses, as they are to be called as witnesses for the defense.

OBSTRUCTION ON PENNA.

In the majority of cities where regrad-ing of this kind is done the street is entirely closed to traffic during the re-surfacing work. Here the street cars continue to run with only slight delays in their schedule, and thus far there has been little inconvenience to the public as a whole.

Question of Engineering.

"In answer to the criticism that the work might be done at night, and that the cars would thus be able to run on schedule and not interfere with the workmen, thereby impeding the progress of the work, it should be stated that such a proposition is not feasible. It would be impossible to operate the transiff and levels at night. These surveying instruments must be used with the greatest precision, as accuracy in grading is an essential in elevating and lowering the immense underground concrete conduit.

"The same explanation answers the criticism about there being only one shift of laborers at work, except on three nights in the week, when there is a certain amount of work that can be done by lantern and torch light.

Grade Crossings Difficult.

"As soon as the work of regrading the north track is finished, the engineers will begin work on the south track. The latter work will be completed much rapidly than the first half, as the grade crossings at Fourteenth, Ninth, and Seventh streets have already been completed, and this was the most difficonflected, and this was the most diffi-cult feature of the undertaking.

"After the grading of the tracks is completed the work of re-surfacing the Avenue from Sixth to Fiftcenth streets will begin. One side of the avenue will be closed at a time while the asphalt is being laid."

Patience, Says Macfarland.

Commissioner Macfarland said today "Of course, the Pennsylvania avenue improvement should be done as quickly improvement should be done as quickly as possible, but that is exactly what is being done, according to those who understand the technical side of the matter. I wish it could all have been done at night, or at least that it might have been done both night and day, but that, we are informed by the engineers, is impracticable, daylight being requisite for the engineering work. We must all exercise patience. The work will soon be done, and we shall all be rejoicing in the improvements, so long desired."

The work on Pennsylvania avenue is being done as rapidly as is consistent with thoroughness and durability," said Commissioner West.

Dr. William Tindall, secretary to the Board of Commissioners, said this morning that in the matter of public impact that in which his wife died. Friends fear that the shock may result in his death. He is afflicted with heart to justify the separation."

Dr. William Tindall, secretary to the Board of Commissioners, said this morning that in the matter of public improvements he had always taken a deep interest, and especially street improvements; that he had paid particular attention to the work of raising the tracks of the traction line on Pennsylvania avenue and that he was of opinion that work was being pushed with unusual good and prompt results that reflected credit upon the Engineering Commissioner and his corps of assistants.

LEWIS RAVES WHEN HELD FOR DEATH OF GIRL

Wife Asserts Belief in the Innocence of Her Husband.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., June 25 .- Declared responsible by a coroner's jury for the death of his stepdaughter, fiveyear-old, Mary Robbins Newlin; held to the grand jury without bail, and com mitted to jail on a capital charge, Irwin Lewis is in so shocking a physical and mental condition that physicians express doubt whether he will live to face a on an accusation of murder.

Half led and half carried from th ustice court to the Chester county jail last night, Lewis fell in a fit as he entered his cell, frothing and shrieking until Jail Physician Scattergood administered a sedative, when he fell into the sleep of exhaustion.

Trembling and in complete collapse,
Lewis was then arraigned before Justice
Lipp, committed to jail, and returned from Avondale to the county jail here. Wife Believes in Husband.

With Lewis' confession that he buried the child, the prisoner's father and other, hitherto his stanch defenders, seemed to give up hope. His wife, however, insists that he speaks the truth however, insists that he speaks the truth when he denies that he killed the little one. The woman's condition is such that the gravest fears are felt for her life, as a result of the shock of yesterday's disclosures.

Lewis' lawyers are said to be discussing the advisability of urging their client to make a clean breast of everything and throw himself on the court's mercy.
